CLEMENT TOPLIFF AND HIS DESCENDANTS

SOME time between 1635 and 1637, probably in the "Second Emigration" with Richard Mather, Clement Topliff came to Dorchester, bringing with him his wife Sarah. It is said that nine-tenths of the emigrants of these years came from Essex, Suffolk, and the near-by counties in England. There are Topliffs to be found in Ipswich, Essex County, although there has been no proof found so far that Clement was one of that family. One other clue, and perhaps two, exist, which may some time lead to tangible results. Clement in his will makes his "Cozen Peleg Heath" one of the overseers. This nephew of his, Peleg Heath, was the son of William Heath of Dorchester, who came from Nazeing, County Essex, England, and previously from Widford, Hertfordshire. The Eliots also came from Widford and Nazeing to Dorchester. William Heath had been twice married, and Peleg was the son of his second wife Mary. The relationship is susceptible of three explanations: Clement Topliff married a sister of William Heath or a sister of Mary Heath, or William Heath married a sister of Clement Topliff. This implies that in all probability Clement Topliff or his wife came from this part of Essex, especially when taken in conjunction with the fact that the name "Topliff" was to be found in Ipswich at the time.

The second clue has come through a query in the "Transcript," as to why Sarah Topliff was buried out in Dorchester in the lot that belonged to Thomas Trott, and not with her husband, Clement, who was buried near by. The querist wishes to know if Sarah was a sister of Thomas Trott. The records seem to be silent on the matter, as little is known of Thomas Trott and his family.

Clement Topliff was born on November 17, 1603, and his wife during the year 1605, so that they were no longer a very young couple when they came to Dorchester. If they were married and had children before they emigrated, these had either died or been left behind, for no record appears in this country of any older than Jonathan, born in Dorchester in April, 1637. On March 18, 1637, land on the Neck was laid out to the "p'sent inhabitants of the Towne of Dorchester" in a proportion which had been agreed upon on May 9, 1636. According to this agreement, "every hoame lott that hath a dwelling house thereon or inhabitant incumbant in the 'Towne ; he or it shall haue one acre to the sayd lott, and other hoame lotts halfe an acre ; then the remayner to belong to the same planters by this rule. Three fifts to mens estates owne p'p' as usual they have burden ; and 2 fifts to p'sons equally thus Counted. All men with their wiues and Children in the Plantation vnder their p'sent gouerment in famalyes to be Counted ; Provided allowance be made where house and lotts are intire allbeit for p'sent they haue no p'sons incumbant according to the p'portion of such as Lately did inhabit them."¹ In accordance with this rule "2 akers, 1 quarter and 4 rodes" were set off to "Good : Topley," and the same amount in the "Rest of the Division of other land," that is land neither on the "Neck" nor in the "Cowes Pasture." Clement Topliff's "hoame lott" was near what is now Columbia Road in Dorchester. The new street which was laid out through the old farm is called "Topliff" after the first settler.

CLEMENT TOPLIFF

Clement Topliff's public life in the town was that of a man of good standing with his neighbors, but of no great prominence. He was admitted to membership in the First Church on June 12, 1639, and the following year, on May 13th, he was made a freeman. For fourteen years he took no more part in town affairs than the ordinary citizen, and when in 1653 he was mentioned in the town books once more, it was merely to enter into an agreement with the selectmen for the care of the Cattle of the town. The agreement is interesting as a picture of one phase of farming in those early days, and shows how laboriously and with what care for detail the forefathers planned their lives. Perhaps all these customs, which seem strange and clumsy to us now, were the adaptation of old country ways to the conditions of land so lately cleared.

During the same year, 1653, the Town for various purposes disbursed “40^{lb} 14^s 11^d,” one item of which was “for making the fence by Goodman Toplens o 7 6.”¹

Mr. Topliff held but one other office in the town, that of fence viewer of the twenty acre lots in 1656, in company with Thomas Sweft. He was one of the signers of the Thompson’s Island agreement in 1641.

Clement Topliff died December 24, 1672, in Dorchester, and was buried in the old burying ground at the corner of the present Stoughton Street and Columbia Road. His widow Sarah died July 29, 1693, aged eighty-eight years. Their gravestones still stand in the Cemetery.

Clement and Sarah Toppliff had five children, two boys and three girls. The eldest son, Jonathan, died early, but the other son, Samuel, lived to grow up. Of the daughters, the oldest, Sarah, was born in May, 1639; she married David Jones, May 11, 1659. They had at least five children, four sons and a daughter, of whom the youngest bore the fervid name of Praise-ever. Mrs. Jones died October 13, 1683.

Obedience, the second daughter of Clement, was born in July, 1642, and married when she was seventeen David Copp, or Cope, of Boston. The ceremony was performed on February 20, 1659, by Major Humphrey Atherton, and is recorded both in Boston and Dorchester. David Copp was the son of the owner of Copp's Hill, and the gravestone to his two children, David and Thomas, is the earliest stone still standing in the burying ground on that hill. It was found beneath the ground in 1878, and bears the date 1661. In the volume on Copp's Hill issued by the Cemetery Department of the City of Boston a short biography is given of David Copp, who, it says, “was the most notable member of the family. He was an Elder in Cotton Mather's Church, and of considerable prominence in the North End, dwelling in a brick House at the head of Hull Street. He died November 20, 1713, Aged 78. The stone is left standing to record the name of his first wife who was Obedience Toppliff.”² Judge Samuel Sewall mentions him often in his Diary, once recording a call made on Elder David Copp. All the other entries are references to the Elder having been a “Bearer” at some funeral. On November 19, 1713, Sewall writes, “Elder Copp pray'd for as dangerously sick.” He died the next afternoon, and was buried, according to Sewall, on the twenty-fourth, “in the North. Bearers Mr Thomas Oakes, Mr Thornton; Capt. Atwood, Mr Maryon; Deacon Tay, Deacon Hubbard; Follow'd the Mourners, Mr Cook, Hutchinson; Sewall, Col. Lynde; E^m Hutchinson, Col. Townsend; Dr C. Mather, and Mr Wadsworth there. A pretty many Men but few Women”³ Obedience Copp died many years before her husband and just five years after the birth of her youngest child, on May 30, 1678. David and Obedience Copp left at least four sons and one daughter: David, Jr., and Samuel, of Boston, Jonathan of Stonington and John of Norwalk. The sons divided his estate in 1714.

Savage adds a daughter, Sarah, and the fact that the first child was a son, David, who died when very young. The gravestone mentions Thomas in addition.

Patience, the youngest daughter of Clement Toppliff, was born in July, 1644. She married, March 27, 1667, Nathaniel Holmes of Roxbury. They had eleven children. She died March 11, 1697.

Clement Toppliff was a well-to-do man for his time, as his inventory proves; he was also a loving husband and father, as his will shows vividly. It is a very individual will, and is apparently so characteristic of the man, that it would be valuable for that reason, if no interest attached to it as the will of the founder of the family in Massachusetts. The will was probated in Boston, and is recorded in the Suffolk Probate, Volume VII., page 281. This copy is from the original.

“ The Lord having visited me with much infermity & weaknes and I being at this time very weake in body yet having the perfet use of my understanding and Memorey, yet not knowing how it may please god to dealle with me, I doe make this as my last will and testament committing my Soule into the hands of my most mercyfull Saviour & Leaving my body unto my deare wife & loving children to be by them decently beuried, I doe dispose of that estate that god hath mercifully given me as followeth

- i. JONATHAN, b. April, 1637; probably died early.

- v. SAMUEL, b. May 7, 1646; d. October 12, 1722.

SAMUEL² TOPLIFF, the only one of Clement Topliff's sons who grew to manhood and married, so far as is known, was the youngest child, and was born May 7, 1646. He was a more prominent man than his father, partly, perhaps, from his natural abilities, and partly because his father left him very well-to-do. Clement Topliff's estate footed up to £286, of which only fifteen pounds had to be paid out by Samuel to his brothers-in-law. The main estate or homestead was on Bowdoin Street,¹ and included the land on which St. Mary's Church stood in 1859. Mr. Orcutt, in his "Good Old Dorchester," described him as "prominent in Church and town affairs. He was elected elder in 1692, and presiding elder in 1701, — which latter office he retained until his death. He filled every town office from Constable to Selectman, including that of town clerk. He was one of the 'twenty proprietors' 'incorporated into a distinct body with power to lay out and fell land,' etc., in the grant known as the 'Ponkapoag Plantation.' The records of the first Church bear ample evidence of his activity and zeal."²

Hopestill Clap and Samuel Topliff were elected constables in March, 1678/9, and from that time Samuel Topliff rose year by year through the list of town offices. In 1681 he was tything-man; in 1686 he was rater, or, as the records put it, "Ratter"; in 1690 he was sealer of weights and measures. The Dorchester records give a full description of his receiving this last office; "the : 13th febr^{re}; 1690 there was delivered to Sarg^{nt} Samuel Topliff, the weights and mesurs, that weir the towns Standerds, to trye weights and mesurs by." There were two kinds of weights and one set of measures. The first set were bell-shaped, and included 56, 28, 14, 7, 4, and 2 pound weights; the second were "flat brass weights" of 1, ½, ¼, and ⅓ pounds, and 1, ½, ¼, and ⅓ ounces. The measures were,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS

“one halfe bushell, one peck, one ell, one yearden, one eale quart, one wine pint, two sealling eirons.” This reference gives one fact which is nowhere else mentioned, that Samuel was a Sergeant in the militia company. In 1691 he was elected selectman, and served for two years without re-election, as did all the board chosen that year. He served again in the same capacity in 1696, 1697, and 1699. Samuel Toppliff’s activities were not all turned to office-holding; twice he received two shillings “for a dayes worke schoole house,” and again a shilling for “Wading Election day.” In 1680 many persons were paid “for keeping Frances,” and among them Samuel, who received four shillings sixpence “for keeping frances 3 weeke.”

In the church his energies were equally well directed. The church plate was turned over to him to keep in 1692 when he was ordained a deacon. This consisted of “4 flagons: 3 Silvar Bools: 3 silvar Beakers: 4 pewter cups 1 pewter pint pott 4 pewter platters 3 small table clothes 2 Baskets.” On February 3, 1701/2, he was chosen ruling elder. Even in those days, when there was much land and luxuries were few, when tastes were simple, and each man literally earned his bread by the sweat of his brow, there were poor, whom the more well-to-do had to aid. In 1689, again in 1691, and in other years, contributions were levied for their assistance, and in each of these general contributions Samuel Toppliff gave a barrel of corn.

In October, 1671, Deacon Toppliff married in Boston Patience Somes, a Gloucester girl who had come with her brother John to live in Boston. She was the daughter of Morris Somes of Gloucester, and Elizabeth, daughter of John Kendall of Cambridge. This marriage record of an Essex County girl to a Suffolk County man is filed among the papers of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace in Middlesex County. The unearthing of Patience’s maiden name is due to Mr. J. Gardner Bartlett. This document was used in some case in Court in October, 1678, seven years after the marriage.

CLEMENT TOPLIFF

Elder Samuel and Patience Topliff had at least eleven children. The eldest child, a daughter, Mehitable, was born August 15, 1673, and probably died early, though no record of her death has been found. A son, Samuel, followed, born August 19, 1675, who died August 30, 1694, at the age of nineteen. His gravestone still stands in the old Dorchester burying ground. Patience, born in 1677, married Nathaniel Craft of Roxbury in 1701, and Thankful, born two years later, married Jabez Searle in 1704. The fifth child was a son, Jonathan, who was born in 1682, and lived to be eighteen, when he died leaving no issue. Waitstill was born in 1684, and married Samuel Henshaw. There followed four brothers, Joseph, Ebenezer, Nathaniel, and Samuel, and a sister, Sarah, born in 1698, who married John Trescott, a brother of her brother Samuel Topliff's wife, Hannah.

The eldest of these four brothers was Joseph (*Samuel*²), who was born in Dorchester April 10, 1687. He married first, in 1710, Sarah —, who was the mother of his two sons, Samuel and Amariah. His second wife was Elizabeth Daniels, whom he married April 13, 1746. Joseph Topliff removed to Stoughton some time between 1725 and 1727, where he afterward became Town Treasurer and Deacon of the Church. He was a mill-owner, and the proprietor of a large tract of land. He bought one hundred and eight acres of the Indians, which he added to the already large tract of land in Stoughton inherited by him from his father. He died January 13, 1749, and the administration of his estate was granted to his brother, Nathaniel Topliff, of Dorchester, on March 13th of that year. The inventory showed an estate valued at £3102 : 9 : 0, of which the dwelling house, barn and homestead were estimated at £2500. His fourth interest in a saw-mill was appraised at £100. (Suffolk Probate, Vol. 43, p. 416.)

Nathaniel Topliff (*Samuel*²), born in Dorchester, September 7, 1692, was the ancestor of the branch of the family who remained in Dorchester. He married, May 23, 1723, Hannah Blake. Like his elder brother, he was a Deacon of the Church. He was a weaver by trade and a man of affairs. On March 11, 1734, Joseph Topliff, yeoman, of Stoughton, Samuel Topliff, housewright, of Milton, Samuel Henshaw, yeoman, of Milton, and Waitstill, his wife, Thankful Searle, widow, of Dorchester, John Trescott, Jr., yeoman, of Dorchester, and Sarah, his wife, children and heirs of Elder Samuel Topliff, quitclaimed their rights in their father's estate for £350 to Nathaniel Topliff, his executor. (Suffolk Deeds, Vol. 56,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS

p. 156.) Later, Ebenezer Topliff, Jr., quitclaimed his rights in his grandfather Elder Samuel's estate to Nathaniel for £300. (Suffolk Deeds, Vol. 61, p. 94.) Nathaniel⁸ Topliff was survived by one son, Samuel⁴, born May 24, 1728. Samuel⁴ Topliff married in 1754 Mary Hall, and became the father of the only poet the family has so far boasted. Nathaniel, the poet, was born in Dorchester, September 4, 1757. In 1809 he published a small volume of "POEMS, moral, descriptive, and political." Dr. Thaddeus Mason Harris of the First Church in Dorchester, who preached his funeral sermon, says of them: "The caustic satire of some of the pieces, the want of polish, and perhaps the ardor of political feelings, rendered the little book rather unpopular; but, when considered as the production of one who had not enjoyed the advantages of education, and written after he was fifty years old, it will be allowed no inconsiderable merit. — The Hymn which he composed, and which was sung at the dedication of the new meeting house in the first parish in Dorchester, has been printed, as have one or two other occasional pieces."¹

Elder Samuel Topliff's tenth child, Samuel⁸ (*Samuel*²), was born in Dorchester May 30, 1695. He married, February 8, 1715, Hannah Trescott. After the birth of their fifth child, Clement, they moved to Milton, where they remained until about 1736. In 1729 Hannah was deeded her father's estate in Dorchester, and later Ebenezer Trescott sold his father's lands in Milton to his brother-in-law Samuel Topliff for £600.² Samuel migrated to Lebanon, Connecticut, and again in 1740 to Willington in the same State, where he died in 1754. He had nine children, three of whom were sons who reached mature years and had children. By far the largest branch of the family is descended from the Connecticut line. Samuel Topliff's youngest sister and her husband, John Trescott, also went to Connecticut.

Elder Samuel² Topliff died October 12, 1722, leaving a will, in which he mentions his children Patience Craft, Thankful Searle, Waitstill Henshaw, Sarah Topliff, Ebenezer, and Nathaniel. (Suffolk Probate, Vol. 22, p. 740.) Nathaniel and Ebenezer were executors. The inventory first shown estimated the estate at £503 : 03 : 01. The house and land were appraised at £400. In 1722, more lands were found to belong to his estate, estimated at £52 : 17 : 8. Again, on February 1, 1727/8, further lands were inventoried and returned.

EBENEZER⁸ TOPLIFF, eighth child of Elder Samuel Topliff and Patience his wife, was born in Dorchester February 14, 1689/90. His life was short and uneventful, so far as holding town and church offices were concerned. He was a cordwainer by trade. On January 22, 1712/3, he married Sarah, daughter of Henry Withington, who must have died almost immediately and without issue. About 1714 he married Mary, daughter of Philip Withington, a cousin of his first wife. Mary Topliff had two sons, Jonathan, born July 14, 1715, who died May 28, 1720, and EBENEZER ⁴ TOPLIFF, only surviving son of Ebenezer Topliff, was born in Dorchester September 16, 1719. His father died when he was between two and three years old, and his mother when he was about five. According to the Suffolk Probate records he had a guardian appointed after his mother's death, but the record is lost. The guardian, however, was probably his uncle Ebenezer Withington, who represented Ebenezer Topliff in the agreement of the heirs of Philip Withington. Philip Withington,¹ the father of Mary Topliff, died in 1736. His will was made on December 31, 1734, with Nathaniel and Hannah Topliff as witnesses. Among the other items appears the following: "It. out of my estate." Philip Withington's wife Thankful died also in 1736, and her portion was also divided. (Suffolk County Probate, Vol. 33, p. 41.) On May 29, 1744, Ebenezer Topliff married Priscilla, daughter of James and Priscilla Foster of Dorchester.¹ She was born November 18, 1722. Ebenezer was a rolling stone, and lived in Weymouth, 1745, in Boston from 1748 to 1762, in Milton about 1776, and at last settled in Stoughton in 1779. He was chiefly renowned in that town for having owned the first "chaise." He was in the Dorchester Company under Captain Robert Oliver in 1743, on duty at Castle William, now Fort Independence.

Priscilla Topliff was buried in the old cemetery at the South end of Boston Common, near the Boylston Street Mall. The stone reads as follows :

"HERE LIES BURIED THE REMAINS OF MRS PRISCILLA TOPLIFF THE CONSORT OF MR EBENEZER TOPLIFF, WHO DIED JULY 21st 1772 IN THE 49th YEAR OF HER AGE

"Blessed are the dead that praise thier maker with thier breath
Until thier life is lost in death."

Ebenezer took for his second wife Abigail, the widow of "William Shaller, the great rattle-snake killer." She was Abigail Crane of Milton, and had married William Shaller about 1770. Ebenezer Topliff died on September 24, 1795, and his widow survived him thirty-one years. She died June 28, 1830, aged one hundred years, ten months, and one day. "To her home on the Centennial anniversary of her birth came the Rev^d Samuel Gile from Milton to celebrate the occurrence with appropriate exhortation and prayer."

Ebenezer and Priscilla Foster had eight children ; the eldest, Mary, and the fourth, Foster, died early. Of the five other children, James, Anna, Foster, Ebenezer, and Abigail, nothing is known.

SAMUEL⁵ TOPLIFF, the sixth child of Ebenezer and Priscilla (Foster) Topliff, was born May 7, 1758, in Milton. When he was eighteen he joined the Stoughton Company of Volunteers, but was in active service during the Revolution only nine months in 1778. After the close of the war he went to sea, and became part owner of the ship which he commanded at the time of his death. He had, previous to the "Embargo," acquired an independent fortune. This he subsequently lost through his mistaken judgment in endorsing notes for his friends. The effect of the Embargo caused many failures in Boston, and Captain Topliff's friends' notes went to protest, and he was forced to liquidate them. He saved enough to purchase half ownership in a brig, and returned to the field of his former ventures in the West Indies.

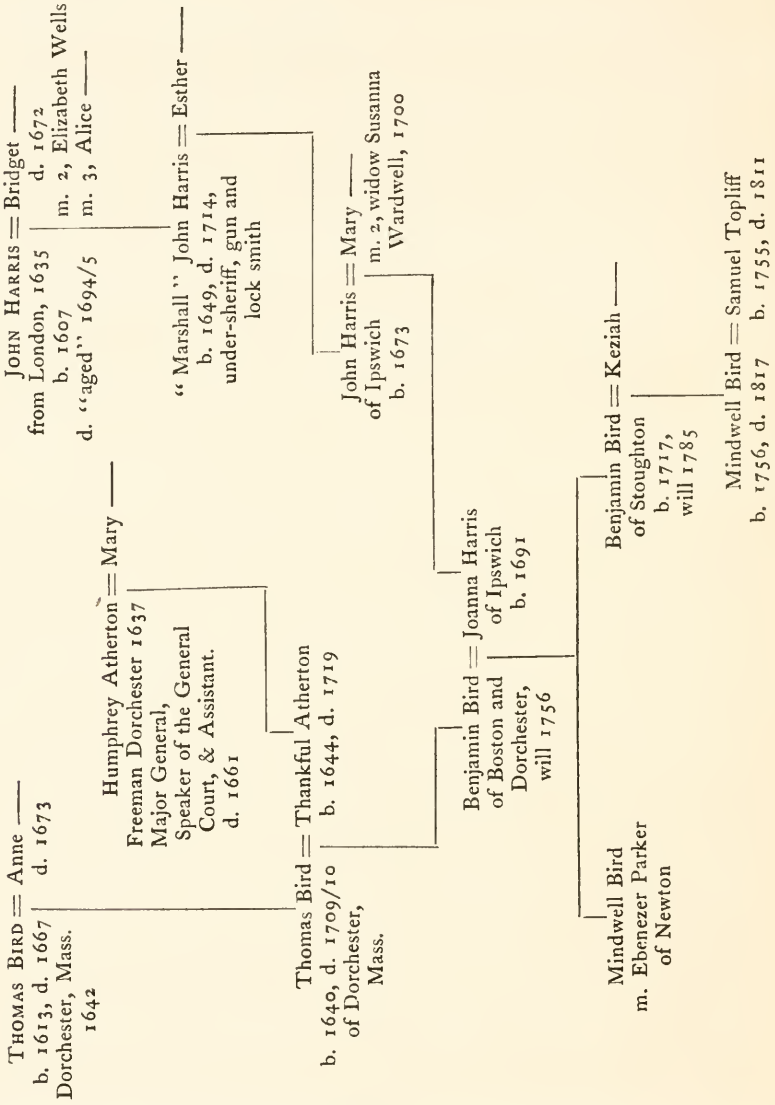

In 1774, three sisters, Chloe, Keziah, and Mindwell Bird, were registered as singers in William Billings's singing class in Canton. The youngest of these sisters, Mindwell, daughter of Benjamin and Keziah Bird¹ of Stoughton, married, September 27, 1781, Captain Samuel Topliff, and became the mother of seven sons. Mindwell (Bird) Topliff's birth is nowhere recorded, but her father, Benjamin Bird, in his will gives to his "Daughter Mindwell Topliff three pounds lawful money in things for house keeping as soon as conveniently may be." (October 29, 1785, Suffolk County Probate, Vol. 86, p. 612.) In 1798 Captain Topliff owned and occupied a wooden house on the east side of Orange Street in Boston, having for neighbors Mrs. Simpson on the north and William Wyman on the south. The land was a lot of 3,360 square feet. The house was of three stories, with twenty-five windows, and covered an area of 1,026 square feet. There was also a one-story wooden shed containing 180 square feet. The whole establishment was valued at $2,200.

Captain Topliff was murdered at sea by a mutinous crew on August 6, 1811. The "Palladium" for Tuesday, September 24, and the "Boston Patriot" for the next day, contain the following blood-curdling announcement: "At Sea, about the month of August last, Captain Samuel Topliff, of Boston, aged 54, was, by his Savage crew, murdered in a horrid manner. His loss to his family and friends is irreparable.”

The cook of the crew, Nicolas Jose Monterio, turned State's evidence, and the mutineers were brought to trial. The schooner, the “Syren,” had been burned, and the money received from the last cargo divided among the murderers. When they were arrested the money was found upon them, and was seized and retained by the authorities at Nassau. The only article that ever reached his family was Captain Topliff's watch. The cook's evidence at the trial gives a very full account of the mutiny.

The “Columbian Centinel” for Wednesday, December 4, has an item from Nassau, dated November 3: “The Admiralty Session Court will meet on Tuesday which is the day assigned for the Trial of the men arraigned for the murder of the master and mate of the Am. Sch. Syren. — [The two men who murdered Captains Topliff and Holbert on board the Sch. Syren, were executed at Nassau, on the 8th Nov.] ”

On the next day a fuller account of the end of the murderers was published.

“DEATHS — FOREIGN. In New Providence 8th ult Nicholas Zamry, a native of the Seven Islands, and Antonio Lorego, a Campechino; both executed for the murder of W^m. Holbert, the master, and Sam^l Tapliff (of this town), part owner of the Sch. Syren. The Greek appeared very penitent; but the Spaniard was a most hardened villain, and after abusing the officers of justice for delaying his execution three days, and confessing he had before murdered two other persons (his mother and brother!) he was launched into eternity, whilst regretting that the cook (who had turned State’s Evidence) did not share his fate.”

The widow Mindwell Topliff, and three sons, James, Samuel, and Benjamin, survived Captain Topliff. Mindwell Topliff was made administratrix of the estate, which amounted to very little, since the schooner was burned, and nothing could be recovered. The personal property was appraised at only $226.72, of which $102.37 was spent for mourning and fees. The rest, $124.35, the widow petitioned the court might be given her for support. This was granted. In 1813 the estate was declared insolvent, and the widow again petitioned the court of probate, this time that commissioners be appointed to settle the estate. John Heard, Jr., and Joseph Pierce were named by the court. They brought forward a long list of notes signed almost without exception in Labrador, which, with some bills of exchange, were declared worthless. Some payment of the creditors was made later, but it is impossible to tell whence the money came.¹

HYMN BY NATHANIEL TOPLIFF, OF DORCHESTER, SUNG AT THE DEDICATION OF THE FIRST CHURCH IN DORCHESTER,
DECEMBER 2, 1816

I

GREAT architect divine
Who rais'd all Nature's frame,
Accept and own as thine
The house built for thy name !
Arise, O Lord,
Into thy rest
And here afford
What makes us blest !

Thy Temple is all space,
But still thy wond'rous love
And condescending grace
Assembling crowds shall prove.
Thou fillest all,
Thou God alone ;
And Seraphs fall
Before Thy throne.

Though Heaven cannot contain
Thy glory, Lord of all,
No humble soul in vain
Upon his God shall call.
Where two or three
Are well agreed
In seeking thee,
They shall succeed.

A house for God we found,
And in it we appear
To hear the joyful sound
Of free salvation here ;
And to receive
The joyful news,
Obey, believe,
And not abuse.

Here grant thy presence, Lord,
And smile on our design ;
And bless thy holy word,
With Energy divine !
Here may we find
Our souls renewed
Our graces shined
Our sins subdu'd.

Dear Lord, we praise the Grace
That show'd our feet the way
To such a blessed place ;
Let us abide and stay :
Or when we rise
Be so improv'd
As 'bove the skies
To meet below'd !

O gather all mankind
Unto thy temple, Lord,
And happy may they find
How well thy house is stor'd.
Full chorus swell
From every tongue,
And grace to tell
Be all their Song !
